2. ORGANISATION OF THESIS

3. THESIS FORMAT

4. ORGANIZATION OF SYNOPSIS OF THESIS

1. PREAMBLE

While utmost attention must be paid to the content of the thesis, which is being submitted in partial fulfilment of the requirements of degree, it is imperative that a standard format be followed. The same format shall also be followed in preparation of the soft copy (pdf) of the thesis. The thesis evaluation process is envisaged as an online process using the soft copies of abstract and thesis, uploaded by the college in the university portal. Two hard copies one each for the college and the University shall be submitted after the final viva-voce examination.

The following formatting guidelines have been designed to benefit current and future users of the thesis by ensuring that it is a complete, legible, well organized, and accessible document. These are intended to help students prepare their thesis manuscripts to an appropriate academic or professional standard.

2. ORGANISATION OF THESIS

Abbreviation Notation and Nomenclature: A complete and comprehensive list of all abbreviations, notations and nomenclature including Greek alphabets with subscripts and superscripts shall be provided after the list of tables and figures. (As far as possible, generally accepted symbols and notations should be used).

Preliminary pages from dedication (if any) to abbreviations shall be numbered using Roman numerals in lower case, while the text starting from the Introduction shall be in Hindu - Arabic. (The first pages in both the cases shall not bear a page number).

MAIN PAGES

The main pages of the thesis shall be presented in a number of chapters, starting with Introduction and ending with Summary and Conclusions. Each of the other chapters will have a precise title reflecting the contents of the chapter. A chapter can be subdivided into sections, sub-sections and sub-sub-section so as to present the content discretely and with due emphasis.

Introduction: The title of Chapter 1 shall be Introduction. It shall justify and highlight the problem posed, define the topic and explain the aim and scope of the work presented in the thesis. It shall highlight the significant contributions from the investigation.

Review of Literature: This shall normally form Chapter 2 and shall present a critical appraisal of the previous work published in the literature pertaining to the topic of the investigation. The extent and emphasis of the chapter shall depend on the nature of the investigation.

Report on the present investigation: The reporting on the investigation shall be presented in one or more chapters with appropriate chapter titles.

- Due importance shall be given to experimental setups, procedures adopted, techniques developed, methodologies developed and adopted.
- Comparison/merits of the proposed work with relevant state of the art in the field shall be included appropriately.

- While important derivations/formulae should normally be presented in the text of these chapters, extensive and long treatments, copious details and tedious information, detailed results in tabular and graphical forms may be presented in Appendices. Representative data in table and figures may, however, be included in appropriate chapters.
- Figures and tables should be presented immediately following their first mention in the text. Short tables and figures (say, less than half the writing area of the page) should be presented within the text, while large table and figures may be presented on separate pages.
- Equations should form separate lines with appropriate paragraph separation above and below the equation line, with equation numbers flushed to the right.

Results and Discussions: This shall form the penultimate chapter of the thesis and shall include a thorough evaluation of the investigation carried out and shall bring out the contributions from the study. The discussion shall logically lead to inferences and conclusions. This chapter is not compulsory, if the results and discussions are included earlier in contributing chapters.

Summary and Conclusions: This will be the final chapter of the thesis. A brief report of the work carried out shall form the first part of the Chapter. Conclusions derived from the logical analysis presented in the Results and Discussions Chapter shall be presented and clearly enumerated, each point stated separately.

Limitations of the research and scope for future work: Limitations of the research and scope for future work shall be stated lucidly in the last part of the chapter.

Appendix or Appendices: Detailed information, lengthy derivations, raw experimental observations etc. are to be presented in the separate appendices, which shall be numbered in Roman Capitals (e.g. "Appendix IV"). Since reference can be drawn to published/unpublished literature in the appendices, these should precede the "Literature Cited/Bibliography" section.

Literature Cited/Bibliography : The candidates shall follow the style of citation and style of listing in one of the standard journals in the subject area consistently throughout his/her thesis, for example, IEEE in the Department of Electrical Engineering, Materials Transactions in Department of Metallurgical Engineering and Materials Science. However, the names of all the authors along with their initials and the full title of the article/monogram/book etc. have to be given in addition to the journals/publishers, volume, number, pages(s) and year of publication.

Citation from websites should include the names(s) of author(s) (including the initials), full title of the article, website reference and when last accessed. Reference to personal communications, similarly, shall include the author, title of the communication (if any) and date of receipt.
